Classes Starting Soon...

Into the Light: A Watercolor Workshop

Roger Whitlock

Saturday & Sunday, August 6 & 7 / 10:00 am - 3:00 pm

In an "into-the-light" painting, the subject is backlit with the light source illuminating the subject from behind. Most objects in the painting merge into a few large shapes and become silhouettes. The subject matter has been simplified; the painting is atmospheric, often dramatic, and occasionally mysterious. Students will produce a variety of "into-the-light" representational paintings, including landscapes, street scenes, cityscapes, and interiors.

Tuition: $155 ($194 nonmember) + supply list provided upon registration.

Digital Photography: Macro Workshop

Aubrey Hord

Tuesday & Wednesday, August 8 & 9 / 9:00 am - 12:00 noon

By using natural and studio lighting, creating a macro studio, and photographing shells, tropical flowers, food, and other small elements, students in this workshop will learn the basics of macro photography and how to create their own at-home studio. Students will download images into Adobe Lightroom, edit them, and print their favorite 8x10!

Tuition: $75 ($94 nonmember) + Lab Fee: $10

Design Your Own Textile

Nathalie Nuñez

Saturday & Sunday, August 13 & 14 / 10:00 am - 4:00 pm

Think you could be the next great fabric designer? This class will give you the opportunity to test your skills as you learn to use Adobe's Photoshop CS4 software. Using drawings, photographs, and other images of inspiration, students will create a textile design that is a unique piece of digital art. By the end of class, students will be prepared to upload their work to Spoonflower.com, a revolutionary new textile printing service. Within a matter of weeks, your designer fabric will be in your hands and ready to be transformed into projects that are truly one-of-a-kind!
